

Patience

22 September 1988

Your ability to teach is simply learning how to be your Real Self. When you are doubtful and concerned about what others might think of you, you are not being your Real Self.

But by accepting yourself as you are and others as they are, they will accept you and be open to you. You will be able to impart to them the understanding you have according to their ability to see and hear the Truths you are giving.

You must learn to accept each student as they are, giving them freedom to make mistakes even when you have taken extreme measures to show them how not to make mistakes. Even when you have explained one hundred times, take the time and with patience explain once more, all the while directing Light into the student's mind and in and around each word.

Patience brings forth great rewards, for if you persist in patience and Love, the harvest will be great. The time of harvest is not in your hands. The harvest belongs to God. So it is better for you to not look for results. Your work is to plant the seeds of Truth and continue to water, cultivate, and keep alive the sprouts that begin to show by feeding them with divine Light and Love. For Love is the key to all things and patience is a very important attribute of divine Love.

SUGGESTION: I am learning to be patient with myself and all others, giving myself and others freedom to be individuals and make mistakes, learn and grow by them. I now realize that everyone is doing the best they can and this includes me.

It is so much easier to accept everyone as they are, giving help and encouragement when asked and going as far as they are ready.

NOTES: Each person will have their own concept of you, so do not be concerned, because they are individuals just as you are (you also have your own concept of each of them). Do what you can do and then release it. Use your intuition and trust the Life force flowing through you.
